NEW QUESTION: 1

You work in the billing department of your agency and while processing claims, you notice the name of someone you know. Since you are curious, you decide to investigate and you pull their medical record and read it. Is this appropriate?

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

- (1) On my nineteenth birthday, I began my trip to Mali, West Africa.
- (2) Some 24 hours later I arrived in Bamako, the capital of Mali.
- (3) The sun had set and the night was starless.
- (4) One of the officials from the literacy program I was working was there to meet me.
- (5) After the melee in the baggage claim, we proceeded to his car.
- (6) Actually, it was a truck.
- (7) I was soon to learn that most people in Mali that had automobiles actually had trucks or SUVs.
- (8) Apparently, there not just a convenience but a necessity when you live on the edge of the Sahara.
- (9) I threw my bags into the bed of the truck, and hopped in to the back of the cab.
- (10) Riding to my welcome dinner, I stared out the windows of the truck and took in the city.
- (11) It was truly a foreign land to me, and I knew that I was an alien there.
- (12) "What am I doing here?" I thought.
- (13) It is hard to believe but seven months later I returned to the same airport along the same road that I had traveled on that first night in Bamako, and my perspective on the things that I saw had completely changed.

(14) The landscape that had once seemed so desolate and lifeless now was the homeland of people that I had come to love.

(15) When I looked back at the capital, Bamako, fast receding on the horizon, I did not see a city foreboding and wild in its foreignness.

(16) I saw the city which held so many dear friends.

(17) I saw teadrinking sessions going late into the night.

(18) I saw the hospitality and open-heartedness of the people of Mali.

(19) The second time, everything looked completely different, and I knew that it was I who had changed and not it.

If you were to combine sentences 1618 (reproduced below) into one sentence, which of the following would be the best choice? I saw the city which held so many dear friends. I saw tea-drinking sessions going late into the night. I saw the hospitality and open-heartedness of the people of Mali.

A. I saw the city which held so many dear friends: tea-drinking sessions going late into the night, the hospitality and open-heartedness of the people of Mali.

B. I saw the city which held so many dear friends, tea-drinking sessions going late into the night, the hospitality and open-heartedness of the people of Mali.

C. I saw the city which held so many dear friends, I saw tea-drinking sessions going late into the night, I saw the hospitality and openheartedness of the people of Mali.

D. I saw the city which held so many dear friends; I saw tea-drinking sessions going late into the night; I saw the hospitality and openheartedness of the people of Mali.

E. I saw the city which held so many dear friends, drinking tea into late in the night, and the hospitality and open-heartedness of the people of Mali.

Answer: D

Explanation:

This is a little tricky because the repetition here does serve a purpose; it isn't just extra wordage that got in the author's way. Basically, the sentences are a list. When you have clauses that form a list (or other things requiring lots of words and/or punctuation), you separate them with semicolons rather than commas. A. looks good. All of the other answers, except (D), change the sense of the original ever so slightly. D. could be possible if it had and before the last clause, but A. is still better.
