NEW QUESTION: 1

Which of the following should an IS auditor recommend for the protection of specific sensitive information stored in the data warehouse?

- A. implement column- and row-level permissions
- B. Organize the data warehouse into subject matter-specific databases
- C. Log user access to the data warehouse
- D. Enhance user authentication via strong passwords

Answer: A

Explanation:

Choice A specifically addresses the question of sensitive data by controlling what information users can access. Column-level security prevents users from seeing one or more attributes on a table. With row-level security a certain grouping of information on a table is restricted; e.g., if a table held details of employee salaries, then a restriction could be put in place to ensure that, unless specifically authorized, users could not view the salaries of executive staff. Column- and row-level security can be achieved in a relational database by allowing users to access logical representations of data rather than physical tables. This 'fine-grained' security model is likely to offer the best balance between information protection while still supporting a wide range of analytical and reporting uses. Enhancing user authentication via strong passwords is a security control that should apply to all users of the data warehouse and does not specifically address protection of sensitive data. Organizing a data warehouse into subject-specific databases is a potentially useful practice but, in itself, does not adequately protect sensitive data.

Database-level security is normally too 'coarse' a level to efficiently and effectively protect information. For example, one database may hold information that needs to be restricted such as employee salary and customer profitability details while other information such as employee department may need to be legitimately a

- A. PIM is disabled on the RPF interface
- B. There are not any RPF route in the router
- C. On a multi-router egress network, the local router is not a DR
- D. The upstream router discards the received PIM Join message

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3

Your network contains an Active Directory domain named adatum.com. The domain contains a server named ADFS1.

You plan to deploy Active Directory Federation Services (AD FS) to ADFS1.

You plan to register the company's SMTP domain for Office 365 and to configure single sign-on for all users.

You need to identify which certificate or certificates are required for the planned deployment. Which certificate or certificates should you identify? (Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose all that apply.)

A. a certificate that is issued by an internal certification authority and that contains the subject name adfs1.adatum.com.

B. a certificate that is issued by an internal certification authority and that contains the subject name ADFS1

C. a certificate that is issued by a trusted third-party root certification authority and that contains the subject name

adfs1.adatum.com

D. a certificate that is issued by a trusted third-party root certification authority and that contains the subject name

ADFS1

E. self-signed certificates for adfs1.adatum.com

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

E (not C, not D): Setting up AD FS requires the use of a third party SSL certificate. Make sure you match the certificate's subject name with the Fully Qualified Domain Name of the server.
