NEW QUESTION: 3

The release process workflow of an application requires a manual approval before the code is deployed into the production environment.

What is the BEST way to achieve this using AWS CodePipeline?

A. Use multiple pipelines to allow approval

B. Disable the stage transition to allow manual approval

C. Use an approval action in a stage

D. Disable a stage just prior the deployment stage

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

Refer AWS documentation - CodePipeline Approvals

In AWS CodePipeline, you can add an approval action to a stage in a pipeline at the point where you want the pipeline execution to stop so that someone with the required AWS Identity and Access Management permissions can approve or reject the action.

If the action is approved, the pipeline execution resumes. If the action is rejected-or if no one approves or rejects the action within seven days of the pipeline reaching the action and stopping-the result is the same as an action failing, and the pipeline execution does not continue.

You might use manual approvals for these reasons:

* You want someone to perform a code review or change management review before a revision is allowed into the next stage of a pipeline.

* You want someone to perform manual quality assurance testing on the latest version of an application,

* or to confirm the integrity of a build artifact, before it is released.

* You want someone to review new or updated text before it is published to a company website.
