NEW QUESTION: 1

Which of the following test makes sure the modified or new system includes appropriate access controls and does not introduce any security holes that might compromise other systems?

- A. Recovery testing
- B. Interface testing
- C. Stress/volume testing
- D. Security testing

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Security testing tests all security mechanisms and features within a system to determine the level of protection they provide. Security testing can include authorization testing, penetration testing, formal design and implementation verification, and functional testing.

Authorization testing is the process of determining that a requester is allowed to receive a service or perform an operation. Access control is an example of authorization.

Incorrect Answers:

A: Recovery testing is the activity of testing how well an application is able to recover from crashes, hardware failures and other similar problems. Recovery testing does not test access control and does not find any security holes.

C: Stress testing is a form of deliberately intense or thorough testing used to determine the stability of a given system or entity. It involves testing beyond normal operational capacity, often to a breaking point, in order to observe the results. Stress testing does not test access control and does not find any security holes.

D: Interface testing can be used to check the handling of data passed between various units, or subsystem components, beyond full integration testing between those units. Interface testing does not test access control and does not find any security holes.

Explanation

Box 1: Azure IoT Hub

Azure IoT Hub is the cloud gateway that connects IoT devices to gather data and drive business insights and automation. In addition, IoT Hub includes features that enrich the relationship between your devices and your backend systems. Bi-directional communication capabilities mean that while you receive data from devices you can also send commands and policies back to devices.

Note on why not Azure Event Hubs: An Azure IoT Hub contains an Event Hub and hence essentially is an Event Hub plus additional features. An important additional feature is that an Event Hub can only receive messages, whereas an IoT Hub additionally can also send messages to individual devices. Further, an Event Hub has access security on hub level, whereas an IoT Hub is aware of the individual devices and can grant and revoke access on device level.
