NEW QUESTION: 1

You manage database servers in a high security environment. Your company has the following auditing requirements:

- * SQL Server auditing must be enabled on all server instances.

- * Auditing results must be logged in the Windows Security event log.

A routine review shows that a SQL Server is writing auditing entries to Windows Application event log. You change the SQL Server audit target to Windows Security event log. SQL Server auditing stops working on the server.

You need to ensure that the server meets the auditing requirements.

Which two actions should you perform? Each correct answer presents part of the solution.

- A. Grant the generate security audits permission on the SQL Server service account.
- B. Grant the manage auditing and security log permission to the SQL Server service account.
- C. Restart the SQL Server Agent service.
- D. Update Windows security policy to audit object access.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

There are two key requirements for writing SQL Server server audits to the Windows Security log:

- * The audit object access setting must be configured to capture the events.

- * The account that the SQL Server service is running under must have the generate security audits permission to write to the Windows Security log.

NEW QUESTION: 3

While troubleshooting an error, you set the logger level to Debug and find that no entries are being logged in the Sugar log.

Which step would you take to ensure this functionality is working properly?

- A. Reset the appropriate file permissions.
- B. Clear the ~/.cache/~ directory so it can be rebuilt.
- C. Restart the Web server.
- D. Execute a Quick Repair and Rebuild.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4

You are creating an application that manages information about your company's products. The application includes a class named Product and a method named Save.

The Save() method must be strongly typed. It must allow only types inherited from the Product class that use a constructor that accepts no parameters.

You need to implement the Save() method.

Which code segment should you use?

- A. Option A
- B. Option D
- C. Option C
- D. Option B

Answer: B

Explanation:

The condition new() ensures the empty/default constructor and must be the last condition.

When you define a generic class, you can apply restrictions to the kinds of types that client code can use for type arguments when it instantiates your class. If client code tries to instantiate your class by using a type that is not allowed by a constraint, the result is a compile-time error.

These restrictions are called constraints.

Constraints are specified by using the where contextual keyword.
