NEW QUESTION: 1

How can you ensure that instance in an VPC does not use AWS DNS for routing DNS requests. You want to use your own managed DNS instance. How can this be achieved?

Please select:

- A. Change the existing DHCP options set
- B. Create a new DHCP options set and replace the existing one.
- C. Change the route table for the VPC
- D. Change the subnet configuration to allow DNS requests from the new DNS Server In order to use your own DNS server, you need to ensure that you create a new custom DHCP options set with the IP of th custom DNS server. You cannot modify the existing set, so you need to create a new one.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Option A is invalid because you cannot make changes to an existing DHCP options Set.

Option C is invalid because this can only be used to work with Routes and not with a custom DNS solution.

Option D is invalid because this needs to be done at the VPC level and not at the Subnet level

For more information on DHCP options set, please visit the following url

You develop an enterprise application that will be used only by the employees of a company. The application is not Internet-facing. You deploy instances of the application to Azure datacenters on two continents.

You must implement a load balancing solution that meets the following requirements:

*

Provide network-level distribution of traffic across all instances of the application.

*

Support HTTP and HTTPS protocols.

*

Manage all inbound and outbound connections.

Any back-end virtual machine (VM) must be able to service requests from the same user or client session.

Solution: You implement Traffic Manager.

Does the solution meet the goal?

A. No

B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

A Traffic Manager works at the DNS level. It uses DNS responses to direct end-user traffic to globally distributed endpoints. Clients then connect to those endpoints directly.

An application manager, which works at the Application level (Layer 7), is also required.
