When using Broadcom network interfaces with Hardware iSCSI Offload capabilities such as BCM5709 and BCM57711, each of the network interfaces shows up as individual storage adapters in the Configuration tab of an ESX host and each adapter also has an individual IQN. However, when you configure the adapter for iSCSI, you observe these symptoms:

You are unable to add any discovery addresses.

When observing the Dynamic or Static Discovery tabs in the iSCSI Initiator Properties window, you see the message:

The host bus adapter is not associated with a vmknic. To configure targets the adapter should be associated with a vmknic. Refer to the VMware documentation to associate the adapter with a vmknic.
