A contingent asset is:

- A. Recognized when condemnation awards are probable or can be reliably estimated.
- B. Not recognized under any circumstances.
- C. Recognized when damages to be awarded in a copyright infringement suit are highly probable.
- D. Recognized when disclosure in the notes to financial statements only could be misleading.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A contingent asset is a possible asset arising from past asset and the existence of which will be confirmed only by uncertain future events not wholly within the entity's control. An example is a potential recovery on a legal claim with an uncertain outcome. A contingent asset is not recognized but should be disclosed if an inflow of economic benefits is probable. Disclosures include a description of the contingent asset and an estimate of its financial effects. A contingent asset is not recognized because the income may not be realized. However, if realization is virtually certain, the asset is not contingent and may be recognized.
